

Tennessee Wings of Liberty Museum Update 2/28/26

Only 77 days until the Tennessee Wings of Liberty Museum opens! While exhibit installation continues in the new building, a team of museum professionals from the Army Center of Military History is busy at the former Pratt Museum preparing artifacts for the move to the new museum. Meticulous work by these skilled technicians ensure the safety and security of artifacts during the move to their new home.

Meanwhile at the new museum, exhibit construction and installation continues. The latest work in progress is construction of the Vietnam Firebase Tableau featuring a 105mm howitzer.

We look forward to opening the doors of this special museum.
Please consider supporting us as we still have work to do to cross the finish line
Thank You.

