

Tennessee Wings of Liberty Museum Update 2/13/26

The snow and ice event that severely impacted the area only slightly impacted work in the museum. The 1220 Exhibits team continued work through the snow and ice. The 1220 team is making great progress both in the museum and in their production facility in Nashville. The entire Center of Military History team is also working hard to meet the 15 May Grand Opening date.

The newest addition, a MQ-1C Gray Eagle being positioned in the museum

Boxes and boxes of material for assembling the exhibits. Lots of work but the results will be world class!

Positioning the WWII Waco Glider before suspending. This historic glider will be the centerpiece of the Atrium.

Happy Valentines day from the Fort Campbell Historical Foundation. We hope you enjoy getting a glimpse of the exhibits taking shape in the museum.

The doors open to the public on 15 May at 1:00 PM.

Please consider supporting us as we still have work to do to get over the finish line. Thank You.
